Hello Jakobi, I forwarded you the email I got from Bioento. Can you please take a look at it and see if that works?

Is this an internship position with defined start and end dates? If yes, what are those dates? Or is this a permanent position with an indefinite end date? Is the start date of the position May 1? This information is crucial to providing appropriate advice to the student about which internship course to enroll in and then provide class permission to the student to enroll in that internship course.

Good morning, This is an 6 month internship. It starts the week after semester finals so that should be on May 13th and should go through the end of the year. Bioento did say that this is a key position and would consider continuing past the end of the year. Let me know if there are any other doubts. Regards, Ramon.

Thank you for clarifying the internship start and end dates. In the job description provided by the employer, I am unable to see any accounting work content. An accounting internship course will require accounting related internship experience. For an International internship course, can you provide more detail of about the international elements of the internship beyond interacting with international team members? At the end of the internship course, as part of course requirements, a formal letter of evaluation from employer would need to be submitted. By what date can your employer provide this letter?

Hello, Besides interacting with the international team members, the products that come out of the bio process are then sold to international animal feed manufacturers, so there is a logistics/supply chain process involved. There is also a need to understand international marketing campaigns as, to my understanding, they would like to grow on both Europe and the Americas. Regarding the letter of evaluation, I can ask the employer to provide at any point. I can ask them to submit the evaluation at the end of the fall semester which would be the actual end of the internship, and enroll in the course in the fall. Let me know if there are any other questions. Thank you.
