The Modern Language Association (MLA) is an organization responsible for developing MLA format, often called MLA style. MLA format is a means for researchers, students, and scholars in the literature and language fields to use a uniform way to format their papers and assignments. MLA documentation style is used in scholarship throughout the humanities, especially in English studies, modern languages and literature, comparative literature, literary criticism, media studies, cultural studies, and related disciplines.

The author-page style means that the author’s last name, the page number(s), quotations and paraphrases must appear in the text. Each reference must appear on the Works Cited page. The author’s name may appear either in the sentence itself or in parentheses following the quotation or paraphrase. The page number(s) should always appear in the parentheses, not in the text of your sentence.
