The Student Activities area has a new look from pool tables to ping pong tables, and with expansion plans in the works, it seems the updated Student Activities area might help students establish a common ground outside the classroom, while taking a break.

The addition of two pool tables, two foosball tables, a ping-pong table, a chess table, and some music in the background has given the Student Activities area a fresh new look and sound.

Michelle Falcon, associate director of Student Activities and Events, says more students have been frequenting the area. Falcon believes there is a need to create experiences outside of the classroom on campus.

“The classroom experience is important but the outside of class experience – that’s important as well,” said Falcon. She discussed expansion plans by The Student Lounge Committee (SLC) for the Student Activities area. Plans include the addition of some flat screen TV’s to view sports or movies, 18 new cubicles for student organizations, a Wii console and emphasized the need for satellite radio. Falcon even discussed a possible stage area for “coffeehouse performances”.

Currently, a space is being renovated for a new computer lab within the Student Activities area for students to use. In 2008, The Student Lounge Committee was formed to address the need for a student lounge at the University of Houston-Downtown (UHD). Falcon, also co-chair of the SLC, thinks an improved Student Activities area “will help bring a sense of university life” to UHD.

UHD freshman Juana Ramirez recently started hanging out in the Student Activities and said the Student Activities area gives her some downtime in between classes.

“I think it’s important you kinda take a break from studying” said Ramirez.

It seems not every student feels the same about expanding the Student Activities area.

See Lounge, Page 3
The State if the Union is strong

According to President Barack Obama, the United States is struggling, but the country still stands and will come out of the current economic mess as powerful as ever.

Obama, in his second State of the Union address, laid out a series of investments to guide the nation into the future and, in a political move, made a contrast between his Democratic policies and the ideas of his conservative detractors. At times the speech was full of compromise and showed a willingness on the part of the president to work with those on the other side of the aisle, but Obama also drew some lines in the sand, indicating where he expects progressives to dig in and stand their ground.

On healthcare reform, Obama said he is willing to make improvements, specifically to the effects of the new policy on small business, but the president is not willing to consider repeal. That is the right approach to take.

Progressives wanted more dramatic reform of the healthcare system and conservatives wanted to leave well enough alone. The reform that came out of that was fairly middle-of-the-road, certainly more in line with what Democrats wanted, but oddly similar to the reforms proposed under Republicans in the early 1990s. The reforms put in place may need to be tweaked, but outright repeal is not an option, and any rhetoric from the right is simply political posturing.

President Obama laid out his ideas for investment in infrastructure - roads, bridges and the like. The interstate highway system was started in the 1950s to help move troops and supplies across the country in the event of war, and that system shaped America’s car-centric culture. Now, that system is not exactly crumbling, but it is falling further and further into disarray with every passing year. Engineers recently graded our infrastructure at a D. For years we have ignored pressing needs to invest in these areas and people will pay for this with their lives. It’s that important.

Not only is this something that directly affects people, but any investment in this area creates jobs immediately. The money spent on upgrading roads, bridges and the energy grid has to be spent in American communities and these jobs cannot be outsourced to China or India.

Obama’s mention of high-speed trains is especially promising. Trains, like those used in Europe and Asia, should criss-cross America, moving people and goods cheaply, cleanly and quickly. During his speech, Obama also extended some olive branches to the right. He encouraged college campuses to allow ROTC and military recruiters on site, Obama showed a willingness to consider an earmark ban Republicans have supported for several years now, and the president promised to simplify the tax code. All of these issues are near and dear to Republican hearts, and all are good ideas. These are the types of things everyone should be able to agree on. The Democrats and Republicans in Congress should find these commonalities and work hard to hammer out the details together. There are certainly plenty of more contentious issues to fight about in the press.

Obama did leave out a few key facts. The speech was surprisingly light on numbers, with very few specifics mentioned. The investments Obama laid out in education, infrastructure and technology were all good ideas, but he failed to lay out a plan for paying for them. The country is short on money right now, the economy is a mess and there are only a few options on how to fix it. Spending in these areas would help, but it would entail borrowing money or raising taxes to pay for it. Both of these options are political kryptonite.

Obama did mention the Bush tax cuts on the wealthiest Americans. Congress recently extended those tax cuts in a compromise with Republicans to extend unemployment benefits. Those tax cuts are not financially sound, and Obama said we cannot afford to extend them permanently. Revoking those tax cuts for the richest two percent of the population would go a long way to paying for the investments in the future that we desperately need.

President Obama’s speech was full of promise and goodwill for the future. He truly is an optimist and we expect that from him, especially in a State of the Union address. However, some tough decisions are going to have to be made in deciding what path the county will take in the future. Americans need a president that can envision and lay out a positive plan for growth, and then make it happen. Rhetoric alone will not get the job done.
Talk to expand student lounge area still on the table

CHRISTINA RODRIGUEZ
Assistant Editor

This new development being undertaken in the Student Activities Center is part of what the Vice President of Administration and Finance David Bradley calls the first in a series of moves toward getting a more stable, larger student lounge put in place.

Bradley said the addition of the games and computers there are to make it “a more inviting place for students to come and hang out. Not just students in clubs, but any student.”

“The SLC has kept the pressure on, but in the real world you can’t just drop everything and make things happen.”

–David Bradley
UHD VP of Administration and Finance

He points out that this temporary game room buys the school some time in making more changes that will enable the school to build a student lounge.

He describes the project as having three phases. The first is currently in action and there are plans to stock the game room with more pool tables and other games. The second phase is to talk to the student body as a whole in order to find out exactly what they want in a student lounge.

The third phase of the project is the budget.

There is no budget right now that is dedicated to the student lounge, but after completion of phases one and two would be the time to discuss it and decide on what the school hopes to set aside and how they are going to pay for the ultimate goal that the SLC has proposed, which is a stand-alone building that has food, drinks and more games.

Before UHD builds a freestanding student lounge, the theory that has been most discussed is to shuffle the bookstore and gold level parking and convert some of that space into a student lounge.

Specifically, the bookstore would move to what is now gold level parking (the middle of the second floor), and the student lounge would take up the space that is currently the bookstore. The third floor would become a lounge and the second floor a game room.

Bradley said that if this plan were acted on, the Student Activity Center would not have to find a new space.

Bradley points out that every theory has a domino-like effect. For the bookstore to move, gold level parking needs to move, further complicating the existing UHD parking conundrum. The solution could be to enlarge the visitor parking underneath the Academic Building, accessed from Girard Street, below the school. This plan has been on the table for months and will begin in March.

There will be two new floors of parking built into the current visitor parking area, but of course, construction means that this area will be closed until October or November of the Fall 2011 semester.

Bradley admits this is problematic, but says, “At least at that point we’ll be in a position to take the gold level parking away and to look more seriously at the whole shift.”

The SLC is keeping the pressure up to put their plans in motion.

“The SLC has kept the pressure on but in the real world you can’t just drop everything and make things happen. They do understand that and have been reasonable and firm. They’ve been good to work with and they’ve been very mature about it,” said Bradley.

The SLC is comprised of students from the Campus Activity Board and the UHD Student Government Association.

Lounge

UHD junior Delpha Roy, who works full time and goes to school full time, won’t be able to spend that much time in the area. Roy feels it could take time away from studying. Even so, Roy expressed some interest in expansion plans if the SLC focuses on installing gaming consoles such as a Wii or an Xbox.

The SLC is working towards creating a place where students can unite outside of the classroom. Falcon hopes many events will be hosted in the Student Activities area, such as a pool tournament to be organized by The Campus Activities Board. Falcon said SLC’s ultimate goal is to have a student union built off campus.

The SLC meets every Friday at 11 a.m. in the Student Activities area and is open to all students.

Falcon has a positive outlook for the Student Activities area and encourages all students to stop by. The Student Activities area is open from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8:00 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays.

The SLC is comprised of students from the Campus Activity Board and the UHD Student Government Association.

Cont’d from Page 1

Campus Activities Board. Falcon said SLC’s ultimate goal is to have a student union built off campus.

The SLC meets every Friday at 11 a.m. in the Student Activities area and is open to all students.

Falcon has a positive outlook for the Student Activities area and encourages all students to stop by. The Student Activities area is open from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8:00 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays.
Brian Chapman named Provost and Senior Vice President

Houston -- University of Houston-Downtown (UHD) President Bill Flores has announced the appointment of Brian R. Chapman as provost and senior vice president.

Flores selected Chapman from among four finalists. His appointment, effective March 1, is subject to ratification by the University of Houston System Board of Regents and will be considered at the Board’s Feb. 16 meeting in Houston.

“We are excited by the leadership, energy and experience Dr. Chapman brings to UHD,” Flores said. “He is an excellent fit with our needs and I know he will provide proven academic leadership for the institution.”

Chapman, a professor of biology at the University of North Carolina Wilmington, has more than 30 years of experience in higher education.

“My wife, Sandra, and I are delighted to be returning to Texas and look forward to working with UHD faculty, staff and students,” he said as he reflected on his appointment as the University’s chief academic officer. “Together we can address the challenges and opportunities that will move UHD to the next level as a premier city university.”

Chapman served as provost and vice president for academic affairs at West Texas A&M University from 2005 to 2008, stepping in as acting president from January to May 2006. He served as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Sam Houston State University from 2000 to 2005. He has also worked at the University of Georgia, the University of Oklahoma and Texas A&M Corpus Christi.

Chapman, whose research interests include vertebrate ecology and management of endangered species with emphasis on birds, bats and rare or protected species, will replace Michael Dressman who has served as interim provost and vice chancellor since Molly Woods retired in July, 2010. Flores said that he and Dressman will work with Chapman to ensure a smooth transition.

UHD College of Business Dean Don Bates and UHD Faculty Senate President Philip Lyons co-chaired the search committee.

“It is rare that the search committee, the faculty, the faculty senate executive committee and the president all agree on the top person in the pool, but that is what happened in this search,” Bates said. “We look forward to having him here.”

Lyons said, “I welcome Dr. Chapman to UHD on behalf of the faculty. His accomplishments in improving student success and retention, promoting teaching excellence and developing support for research and scholarship align well with UHD’s goals and aspirations. I anticipate that the UHD faculty and Dr. Chapman will work together closely through the principles of shared governance to position UHD as Houston’s premier undergraduate university.”

Chapman earned his Ph.D. and master’s degree in zoology from Texas Tech University. He completed his bachelor’s degree in biology at Texas A&M University-Kingsville.

UHD is the second largest university in Houston and the 13th largest four-year, public university in Texas. UHD ranks 34th nationally for graduating Hispanic students with bachelor’s degrees and 47th nationally for graduating African American students with bachelor’s degrees.

Chapman has two adult daughters, Lisa Delao and Paige Najvar, and four grandchildren who live in Austin. His brother, Carl Chapman, and sister, Adelene Pless, live in Houston.

Mrs. Chapman’s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Spencer, and her brother, Jimmy Spencer, reside in Corpus Christi. Her brother, Ron Spencer, lives in Austin and her brother, Steven Spencer, lives in Houston.

Dateline: Downtown is looking for:

Advertising Sales • Writers • Photographers

If interested, please email information to CoxJa@uhd.edu or call 713-221-8569 to schedule an appointment
February has been a month dedicated to celebrating African American history for thirty-five years, and although most Americans are aware of Black History Month, and use the time to embrace black culture, the history of how Black History Month evolved remains unknown to most.

Black history month is a very important time in American history, the history behind it was actually formed quickly, and it is also easy to understand.

The origins of Black History Month date back to 1915, which was the fiftieth anniversary of the passage of the Thirteenth Amendment that outlawed slavery. A black historian of the time named Carter G. Woodson founded an organization called the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASNLH). The goal of the ASNLH was to highlight the achievements and accomplishments of black Americans and people of African descent. As the organization grew in popularity, it established and began observing Negro History Week in February 1926.

Negro History Week was set in the second week of February to coincide with Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass’ birthdays (two men who were directly involved with the emancipation of African Americans from slavery). As the decades continued after the 1920s, schools, community organizations and mayors in major cities began to recognize Negro History Week as an annual American tradition.

During the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s, Negro History Week became extended into a month long celebration on many college campuses.

In 1976, President Gerald Ford officially designated February as Black History Month. President Ford emphasized that it is important for Americans to “seize the opportunity to honor the too-often neglected accomplishments of black Americans in every area of endeavor throughout our history”.

Since 1976, every president has observed and designated February as Black History Month.

Over its nearly four-decade lifespan, every Black History Month has been based on a theme central to black history and culture. Over the years, Black History Month themes have ranged from African American success in politics, economics and education. The theme of 2011 is African Americans and the Civil War.

This year’s theme will focus on the service and contributions of African Americans during the civil war, and on their quest to obtain civil rights. More than two hundred thousand African Americans fought in the Civil War, and their duties ranged from spies to nurses. Although African Americans faced discrimination during the war, they always maintained resilience and looked forward to ending slavery.

In addition to the Civil War theme, 2011 is also named the United Nations International Year for People of African Descent. The importance of this international year is to educate the international community about the historical contributions that people of African descent have made to the world, and the efforts to promote human rights among all societies.

Celebrate on Campus

Film: Ethnic Notions
When: Feb. 1, 2:30 p.m.
Where: Room N-420
Cost: Free

African American Read In
When: Feb. 7, 11 am - 3 p.m.
Where: Room A-300
Cost: Free

Film: Bamboozled
When: Feb. 8, 2:30 p.m.
Where: Room N-420
Cost: Free

Film: Imitation of Life
When: Feb. 15, 2:30 p.m.
Where: Room N-420
Cost: Free

Film: Good Hair
When: Feb. 22, 2:30 p.m.
Where: Room N-420
Cost: Free

Poetry Slam, “Def Jam on the Bayou”
When: Feb. 8, 7 p.m.
Where: O’Kane Theater
Cost: Free
One flight up, two down could ease elevator burden

BISSAN RAFFE
Staff Writer

Although the facilities management has the elevators on their agenda, their plans only encompass maintenance and testing; there are no plans for renovation or enhancement of current elevators.

With the present economical deficit and the limited budget facing the University, priority maintenances such as the W. I. Dykes library renovations, are more favored rendering, elevator inconvenience a trivial issue compared to the rest.

The juncture of ups and downs started on a high note for the University of Houston-Downtown (UHD) this year. One particular quandary facing the university this time has more downs than ups per se.

UHD has an accumulation of seventeen elevators servicing the community for both the academic and main building. During peak hours, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., the traffic facing the elevators is often hindering, and at times frustrating, to students and faculty.

“They [elevators] scare the heck out of me,” said Communications Professor Robert Wawee. But, when urged between new elevators and better parking, he confidently favored better parking.

Others seem less concerned with the elevator traffic.

“I have no problem with the elevators, maybe during peak traffic it is a hassle, otherwise, there is nothing wrong with simply taking the stairs, exercise is good,” said Ana-Maria Medina, visiting professor of Spanish Linguistic.

Getting to class on time is more enforced this semester; professors are cracking down on absences and enforcing attendance to increase grades. Getting to class on time is as crucial as ever, nonetheless, students have been seen simply lingering waiting for an elevator to arrive for as long as ten minutes.

Students with disabilities are affected the most by elevator traffic.

“It is hard to fit my wheelchair into an elevator with so many students, sometimes I end up waiting even more to try to get to class,” said biology major Benjamin Nelson. “And some only needed to go up one flight.”

Students going a few flights up or down are encouraged to use the stairs. Walking up one flight and down two can help ease the elevator delays tremendously.

I think it would potentially help the traffic, but if it were a rule it would be difficult to regulate.

– Alex Weston, Junior

I think if students chose to do so, it would not only help with traffic, but also alleviate stress for students rushing to class in the morning.

– Basit Jawad, Senior
I've made it a personal rule not to use elevators unless absolutely necessary. I think if more students followed this rule, both the elevators and the hallways would become less clogged.

– Cherie Riebow, Freshman

It would potentially be a benefit, but in reality, most students, when they walk by and see an open elevator, will take it regardless of how many floors up or down they are going.

– Melvin Anyanwu, Senior

Not really, most students would not do so and the traffic is so high there might not be a noticeable difference.

– Katherine Duong, Senior

I think if such a thing came to pass, it would make a huge difference, especially since the absence of those using the elevators to go from the 3rd to the 4th floor would make room for those using the elevators to go from the 3rd to the 10th floor.

– Finale Carroll, Junior
Mardi Gras comes to UHD

University of Houston will hold its annual Mardis Gras festivities, Thursday, Feb. 10 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., with a brief intermission from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Maria Garrett, coordinator of Student Activities that hosts the event each year, says there will be live music provided by Nooney and the Zydeco Floaters, complimentary Cajun food catered by B.B.'s Café all day, and a cash bar will be added to the festivities beginning at 5 p.m.

Garrett believes the event will be a good place for students to get to know one another, and become familiar with the student organizations on campus. Each organization will have informational booths set up during the event so students can become familiar with the organizations, in hopes to increase membership and get more students involved at school.

Mardi Gras is a huge celebration that happens yearly in New Orleans, La. The celebration is known for its lavish parties and parades, and it is customary to see people wearing masks and beads.

Mardi Gras can be linked to the ancient Romans, but it was brought to the United States in 1699 when a French Canadian explorer, Jean Baptiste Le Moyne Sieur de Bienville, landed on a piece of land located 60 miles from what is now New Orleans, La., which he chose to name, Pointe due Mardi Gras.

The first Mardi Gras festivities were not held in New Orleans, but were held in Fort Louis de la Louisiane in 1703, which is now Mobile. By the 1730s the festivities were being celebrated by the governor who would throw elegant social balls.

Mardi Gras parades started in the 1830s, however, instead of masked men on floats there were masked men in carriages, and the events became popular enough that newspapers began to print the festivities. Now, Mardi Gras is celebrated with lavish parades consisting of giant decorated floats.

Rex, King of Carnival, was invited to be in the parade in 1872, which launched the Mardi Gras colors, purple, green and gold.

Finally, in 1875, La. Governor Henry Warmoth passed the Mardi Gras Act, which made Mardis Gras an official holiday throughout Louisiana.

UHD has held a Mardi Gras celebration for several years and knows how to make it a good time for all those who attend.

Adult acne vs Rosacea

People often suffer from what they think is “adult acne” when in fact it could be rosacea. Rosacea is a fairly common chronic, inflammatory skin condition seen in adults. Women are more prone to it than men and Caucasians more than other races. Famous people who have rosacea include former President Bill Clinton, Lady Diana, Cameron Diaz and others.

Signs and symptoms include a tendency to blush easily, red areas on the face, small, red bumps or pustules. These are not the same as whiteheads or blackheads. With progression, the small blood vessels in the cheeks and nose become very noticeable. Some persons experience a gritty sensation in their eyes. Over time, without treatment, some develop physical changes in the nose so that it looks redder and more bulbous.

Rosacea usually shows up in stages: pre-rosacea, vascular and inflammatory. Pre-rosacea begins with a tendency to blush easily and progresses to redness of the cheeks and nose. With vascular rosacea, small vessels on the cheeks and nose become visible. During the inflammatory stage, small, red bumps or pustules appear and spread across the nose, cheeks, forehead and chin.

Experts still do not know what causes rosacea but most believe it is a combination of hereditary and environmental factors. Hot food, beverages, hot baths, spicy foods, alcohol, sunlight, stress, anger or embarrassment and strenuous exercise are among the things that make rosacea worse. So, if you have fair or light skin, experience frequent flushing or blushing, have a family history of rosacea and are between the ages of 30 and 60, you may have rosacea. Rosacea cannot be cured but it can be treated and progression halted.

If you suspect that you have rosacea, make an appointment with your health care provider.

–Barbara K. Bailes Ed.D., RN. APN-BC; GNP-RC

Have a health question?
Send your questions to dateline@gator.uhd.edu and watch the UHD Health Corner for answers to your questions.
(Anonymity honored upon request)
Nothing graceful about Black Swan movie

WHITNEY BARRETT
Staff Writer

The new year has barely started, but there's one film for sure that's getting all the talk. Director Darren Aronofsky's Black Swan has everyone praising and critics everywhere seem to be eating this up.

But this movie falls a bit short and constantly makes one want to just stop watching. If you don't watch it more than once, chances are you will end up lost and confused.

Black Swan is another cliché psychological thriller where the main character is losing their mind, leaving the audience wondering what is, and is not really happening to the character.

The film revolves around a production of Swan Lake by a New York City ballet company. Nina Sayers (Natalie Portman) is a frigid, timid dancer who is chosen to play the lead in the ballet, but it is clear before most of the drama begins that this girl is highly psychotic.

Nina's overbearing and seemingly insane mother Erica (Barbara Hershey), could be to blame for her daughter's obsession with perfection. An obsession that leads her down a path of crazed delusions and elaborate hallucinations.

As the film progresses, it seems Nina is taking the whole role of Swan Queen beyond what she is capable of, getting too involved in her character following in the steps of the ballet company's former star, Beh Maclntyre (Winona Ryder), who also seems to be a bit crazed.

Judging from the two characters, the only conclusion that can be drawn from them is that they are both clearly crazy, and the ballet is only making it worse.

There's no subtle moment in the movie, everything becomes over the top and bizarre. Nina is crazy from the beginning, even before she is cast in the leading role. She keeps to herself and is rarely seen socializing with the other girls in the company, who all notice her unexplained scratch marks and mental breakdowns.

Her main problem after landing the role is breaking free of her goody two-shoe personality and adopting one that is more of the black swan. It begins to seem as if her life has just become the play she is in, only darker and more melodramatic.

The most redeeming quality of the film is the choreography and Vincent Cassel's performance as the demanding, brilliant company owner, Thomas Leroy, who pushes Nina to her limits until he gets the performance he has been craving.

Much of the movie is unnecessary, and certain scenes that might explain why it was given the R rating didn't fit to what was happening in the movie. The story was about a dancer who was abused all her life by her mother, who decided to live through her daughter because she had given up her own dancing career when she became pregnant.

Nina's crazed yet vivid hallucinations are annoying and hard to follow. It is already clear that she is not sane, and doesn't understand that the drive for perfection is not a healthy one, nor is the constant pushing of oneself.

Forget all the hype on this and just wait for the DVD. Nothing remotely new happens in the film, it has all the marks of the typical Hollywood ending for characters such as Nina, especially when one can't see past the delusions.

Although it had some winning moments this film is just another psychotic trip that tries desperately to trick the viewer with the redundant question: What really happened, and what was all just in Nina's head?

Continental Club offers downtown downtime

MATTHEW ELLSWORTH
Contributing Columnist

Every Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. the Continental Club, located at Main and Winbern, plays host to Beetle, the club's weekly house Beatles tribute band, and does so with no cover charge.

According to the band's MySpace page, they play "more earlier Beatles [songs] than the late Beatles [songs] mainly due to instrumentation, but we are always working on more songs." You will never hear the same set two weeks in a row.

The band has won a couple of notable awards. In 2008, Beetle won the Houston Press Music award for Best Tribute Band, and Best Cover Band in 2009.

The Continental Club always features another band after Beetle and offers a full bar with reasonable drink prices for those who are of age.

A schedule of upcoming shows can be found at http://continentalclub.com.

Hungry between sets? Food is a very short walk away.

Tacos A Go-Go is located right next door and offers a large menu of chicken, beef, lamb, pork, fish and veggie tacos. Breakfast is served all day with a full assortment of salsas to add a little bit of spice to anything they serve and a few choices of dip, quesadillas, multiple entrée plates and of course, tacos. A full menu is available at http://tacosagogo.com.

So if you are looking to relieve some stress after a hard week, take a short drive down Main Street, to the Continental Club and Tacos A Go-Go and enjoy a great atmosphere, music and food.

The Continental Club is located at 3700 Main Street.

The Continental Club was an original Austin venue, but opened it's Houston location on Feb. 7, 2000. A decade later, it is still a place to unwind for locals and tourists alike. (Photo courtesy of http://continentalclub.com)
Follow Us

@ The Dateline Downtown

@ The Dateline

Moderately Confused
by Jeff Stahler

IN THE FUTURE, EVERYONE WILL GET 400,000 YOUTUBE HITS OF FAME.

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE
by Stephan Pastis

Hulloo, zeeba neighba... Whuh you dooeng?

LISTEN, I DON'T MEAN TO BE OFFENSIVE, BUT WHERE DID YOU GUYS LEARN TO SPEAK ENGLISH?

SAME PLACE MILLION GUYS LEARN... 'SEASAME STREET.'

THAT'S RIDICULOUS, I WATCHED 'SEASAME STREET.' AND I SPEAK FINE. WHAT PART WERE YOU WATCHING?

ME WANT COOKIE!
ME WANT COOKIE TOO!

DILBERT
by Scott Adams

THE EXPERTS SAY I SHOULD MOTIVATE YOU BY DISPLAYING MY OWN SENSE OF PASSION AND PURPOSE.

I LOVE GETTING RICH AT YOUR EXPENSE... AND GOLFING!!!

DO YOU FEEL ANY DIFFERENT?

YUP.

SUDOKU

HOW TO PLAY:
Each row, column and set of 3-by-3 boxes must contain the numbers 1 through 9 without repetition.

Look for the solution in the next issue of Dateline: Downtown
Today’s Crossword

ACROSS
1  Fibber, plus  79  Lawyer’s thing
5  Made a basket  80  Unkind remark
11  Interstellar cloud  84  Solitude enjoyer
17  Sheepish re-  85  Ringing marks?  88  Coeur d’ — Idaho
21  Money exchange  89  W-2 collectors
fee  88  Frozen waffle brand
22  Hummus ingredi-  90  Xylophone need ent  91  Trouser feature
23  Fight locales  92  Baroque com
24  — Romeo  93  poser
25  Macbeth’s burial  94  From — — Z
site  95  Salon employee
26  Traditional say  96  Abyss
ings  96  Raw-fish delicacy
27  Disappear  97  Diamond-like gem
28  Mesh fabrics  99  Giants hero of yore
29  Saracen foes  99  — Assyrians
31  Desist  100  Tusked animals
33  Restaurant seater  101  Facade
35  Cliched  102  Pine
36  Get clean  102  Main rd.
37  Brightly-colored fish  104  Chandelier pendant
38  Wash. time  105  Snack
41  Astronaut —  106  Banned bug spray
Grissom  107  Cry of surprise
42  Donkey  108  Jet
43  Sz. option  109  — Shire of
44  Inbox filler  110  “Rocky” films
(hyph.)  112  Fuji summit
48  Courtyard  113  Marauders
50  Woman in white  115  Don Quixote’s horse
51  Pull laboriously  116  fictional thief —
52  Lupin  120  Salmon variety
53  Rubberneck  121  Remove paint
54  Stinkies  123  Peeled
55  Talkative  125  Stack
57  Country addr.  126  Indigo dye
58  Do the cancan  127  Not as loose
59  Made sharp  128  “1984” author
60  Gum arabic trees  129  Urn homophone
61  Hawaiian —  130  Weathervane site
62  Luau strings  131  Rose-petal oils
63  Mars explorer  132  — — -tat-tat
64  Terrestrial  133  Old ruler of Venice
65  Colonial diplomat  133  — —
66  Sulfured  1  gear
68  Gator Bowl st.  2  Helmsman’s dir.
69  Part of a giggle  3  Scraps
70  Rolled up  3  Hogan dweller
71  Persia, today  4  Computer com
72  On the — vive  4  mand
73  Brown of renown  5  Singer — — King
74  Nuisance  6  Kind of cycle
75  Didn’t hog  7  Tied securely
78  “The Magnificent Seven” name  8  — —

DOWN
1  Supply with  1  Solemn
2  Supplies with  4  Scraps
3  Secular  4  Hogan dweller
4  Mad scientist’s aide  5  Computer com
6  Aborigine of Japan  5  mand
7  Athlete’s tribute  6  Kind of cycle
8  Facets of tribute  7  Tied securely
9  Ballpark  8  — —

Check the February 15 edition of Dateline:Downtown for the solution to this week’s puzzle.
Sports & Fitness - Upcoming Events

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Cost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1/31/2011</td>
<td>Specialty Classes Begin</td>
<td>Various Times</td>
<td>SLC Studio</td>
<td>$10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/4/2011</td>
<td>CPR/AED Training</td>
<td>9am-1pm</td>
<td>TBD</td>
<td>$5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/4/2011</td>
<td>What’s Stopping You from Taking Care of You? Healthy Workshop</td>
<td>9am-1pm</td>
<td>1099N</td>
<td>Free</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/4/2011</td>
<td>Women’s Basketball vs. Texas Southern Univ.</td>
<td>7:00pm</td>
<td>Student Life Center</td>
<td>Free</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/4/2011</td>
<td>Men’s Basketball vs. Texas Southern Univ.</td>
<td>8:30 PM</td>
<td>Student Life Center</td>
<td>Free</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/5/2011</td>
<td>Men’s Baseball Tryouts</td>
<td>Starts at 10am</td>
<td>McReynolds M.S.</td>
<td>N/A</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/6/2011</td>
<td>Intramural Basketball League Game</td>
<td>1:00pm</td>
<td>Student Life Center</td>
<td>Free</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/9/2011</td>
<td>Women’s Volleyball at HCC-Central</td>
<td>7:00pm</td>
<td>HCC-Central</td>
<td>Free</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

For more information please contact Sports & Fitness by calling 713-221-8225, emailing sports&fitness@uhd.edu or visiting www.uhd.edu/sports&fitness

For Rent

1 bedroom duplex apartment near I-45 and Wayside. $500 per month and $500 security deposit. 5619 Polk Street, Houston, 77023. For more information, contact Rosemary Dominguez at 832.766.0270 or Email at rosemary.dominguez@hotmail.com

For Sale

Nikon D40X Digital SLR, PERFECT condition. $700 o.b.o.
Nikon DX 55-200mm and Nikon DX 18-55mm lenses, battery charger, Nikon SB-28DX Speedlight with Hot Shoe. All original receipts except the speedlight. Caps, bags and cords are all included. Call 713-382-5587. Serious buyers only please.

Date Night

Comedy Show & Dinner

Date: Tuesday, February 8th
Comedy Show: 6:30 - 7:30p.m. Auditorium
Maria Falzone - Sex Roles
Dinner: 7:30 - 8:30p.m. Coffeehouse
Free Dinner with Reservations

Make Reservations Today!
E-mail volunteer@uhd.edu for reservations